
SYDNEY SWEENEY

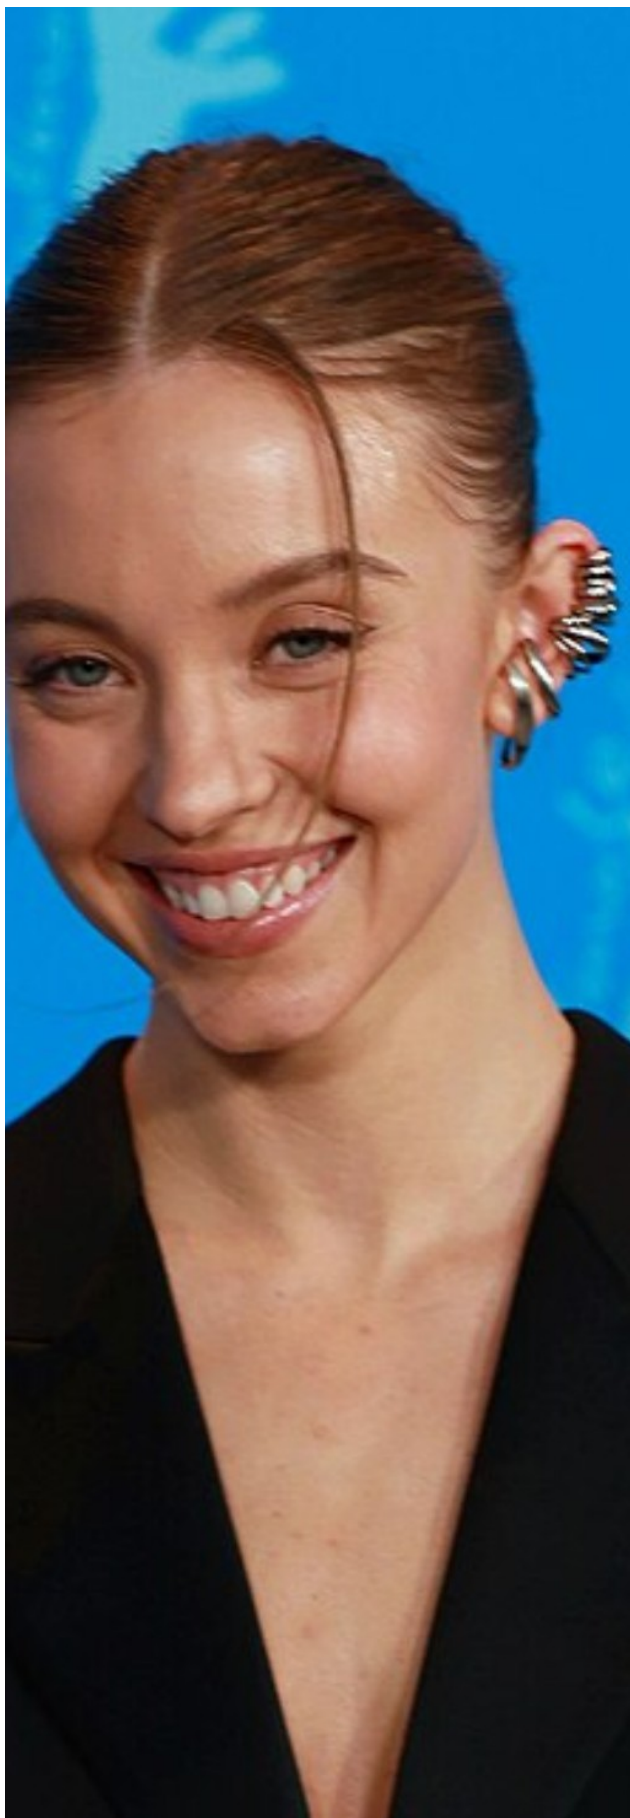

FROM SPOKANE TO HOLLYWOOD

THE ACTRESS • THE PRODUCER • THE NEXT CHAPTER

A NYWEEKLY.CO.UK CELEBRITY SPECIAL

24 OCTOBER 2026

PROFILE • CAREER MILESTONES • FILMOGRAPHY

SYDNEY SWEENEY • RED-CARPET PORTRAIT

Who is Sydney Sweeney?

Sydney Bernice Sweeney is an American actor and producer whose performances have moved between teen drama, prestige television, independent films and mainstream cinema. Born on 12 September 1997 in Spokane, Washington, she grew up in the Pacific Northwest before moving to Southern California as a young teenager to pursue acting.

Her rise was not an overnight story. Early auditions, small television parts and years of steady work built the foundation for the roles that brought her international attention. Sweeney became widely recognised for playing Cassie Howard in HBO's Euphoria and Olivia Mossbacher in the first season of The White Lotus.

Those two performances placed her in very different ensembles and earned her two Primetime Emmy nominations in 2022—one for each series. They also helped establish her as a performer willing to take on emotionally demanding characters rather than staying within a single genre.

QUICK BIO

FULL NAME	Sydney Bernice Sweeney
BORN	12 September 1997
BIRTHPLACE	Spokane, Washington, USA
PROFESSION	Actor and producer
KNOWN FOR	Euphoria , The White Lotus , Anyone but You

A CAREER BUILT THROUGH AUDITIONS

A plan before the spotlight

Sweeney's interest in acting began after a film production came to the Spokane area. According to biographical accounts, she wanted to audition and prepared a five-year business plan to persuade her parents to support the idea. The story has become a memorable detail in her career: even as a child, she treated acting as a serious goal that needed commitment and planning.

She began booking small roles and appeared in television programmes including Heroes, Criminal Minds, 90210, Grey's Anatomy and Pretty Little Liars. These brief appearances gave her experience on professional sets and helped her learn how different productions worked.

At around 13, she moved with her family to the Los Angeles area so she could pursue more acting opportunities. The transition meant leaving familiar surroundings and balancing school with auditions. Her early career was built on a sequence of smaller parts rather than a single instant breakthrough.

Sweeney also developed interests outside acting, including sports and martial arts. She has spoken publicly about training in mixed martial arts, an unusual skill set that reflects the physical discipline required for some of her later roles.

CAREER NOTE

Her early credits show the value of persistence: guest roles became recurring parts, and recurring parts led to projects with larger audiences.

ON THE RED CARPET

The roles that changed the game

A major step came in 2018. Sweeney appeared in the Netflix series Everything Sucks!, Hulu's The Handmaid's Tale and HBO's Sharp Objects. The projects placed her in stories with distinct tones and gave audiences a clearer sense of her range.

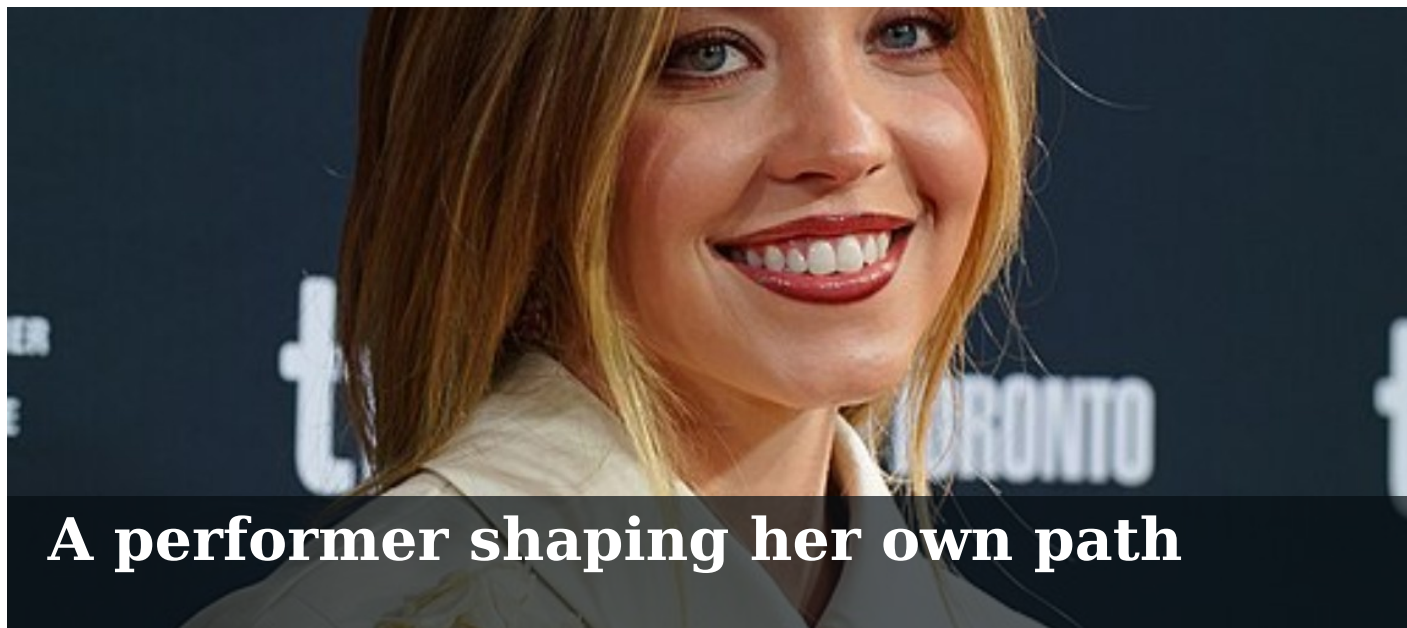

In 2019, she appeared in Quentin Tarantino's Once Upon a Time... in Hollywood and began playing Cassie Howard in Euphoria. In 2021, her role as Olivia Mossbacher in The White Lotus brought another high-profile performance. The two HBO series became defining credits and led to Emmy recognition.

Sweeney later moved into leading film roles. The romantic comedy Anyone but You (2023), co-starring Glen Powell, introduced her to a broad theatrical audience. She also took on darker material in Reality and Immaculate (both 2024), with the latter adding producer to her on-screen work.

Her 2025 credits included Americana, Echo Valley, Christy and The Housemaid. These projects illustrate a career that moves between commercial entertainment and character-driven stories, while her producing work gives her a role in shaping projects beyond performance.

SELECTED SCREEN CREDITS

Television: Euphoria • The White Lotus • Sharp Objects • The Handmaid's Tale
Film: Once Upon a Time... in Hollywood • Reality • Anyone but You • Immaculate • Christy • The Housemaid

A performer shaping her own path

Recognition

Sweeney's work on Euphoria and The White Lotus earned nominations at the 2022 Primetime Emmy Awards in supporting-actress categories. The nominations marked a significant moment in her career and connected her name with two of television's most discussed drama series. She has also received recognition from other industry organisations. Awards databases list a range of nominations and wins across film and television, including a Gracie Award win for her work in a made-for-television film in 2024. Award records can change as new ceremonies take place.

Milestones

- 1997
Born in Spokane, Washington.
- 2009-2017
Early television and film appearances.
- 2018
Breakthrough ensemble projects.
- 2019-2021
Euphoria and The White Lotus bring wider recognition.
- 2023-2025
Leading film roles and expanded producing work.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Sydney Sweeney's story is still unfolding. This profile focuses on publicly documented career milestones and selected credits, rather than unverified rumours. Details are summarised for editorial use and may evolve as new projects and awards are announced.

SOURCE

Wikipedia — https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sydney_Sweeney

Prepared by NYWeekly.co.uk Team • 24/10/2026